NEWS WORTH SHARING.

Answers scarce in flight of the bumblebees

Bzzz. Origins of Union Station swarm, originally thought to have migrated from hotel, remain uncertain

The mystery around the bee swarm at Union Station has deepened.

Thousands of bees caused a buzz Wednesday morning when they covered a backhoe at Union Station's construction site, following their queen bee's search for a new home. The bees were originally thought to have come from atop nearby Fairmont Royal York. But Melanie Coates from the Toronto Beekeepers Co-operative checked on the bees Thursday and found they were happily going about their bee business.

"The Toronto Beekeepers Co-operative has assured us that the bees in the six hives on the rooftop garden of the Fairmont Royal York are all accounted for and were not affiliated with the bees found on the Front Street construction site," Sonya Singh, director of marketing and communications for the hotel, said in an email to the Torstar News Service.

She added they were checked on the weekend, and again Thursday morning by Coates, with no visible signs of swarming or a second queen that would cause them to split and leave the hive.

A spokesperson for the beekeepers co-op said there are many other places in the downtown core where bees are kept and could have left the hive, including the Opera House, Toronto Island and the University of Toronto.

The TTC's Brad Ross said a beekeeper was brought in and "whispered sweet nothings to the bees and they dispersed."

But where they came from and where they went remains a mystery. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Not uncommon

Although quite a sight to see in downtown Toronto, swarming of bees is common and healthy. It's part of the bee reproduction cycle, when the old queen leaves the hive to make room for new larvae, said Ernesto Guzman, head of the University of Guelph's Honey Bee Research Centre.

Creating (a lot of) change

Free The Children and RBC celebrated the incredible fundraising effort of youth and their schools through the "We Create Change" penny drive Thursday by announcing the final total — 140 million pennies ($1.4 million), providing 56,000 people with clean water for life. Pictured, from left, are: Gord Nixon, president and CEO of RBC, Jennifer Tory, a regional RBC president, and Free The Children co-founder Marc Kielburger, together with some of the students who helped raise $1.4 million for the campaign. Mayor Ford seethes over lost funding

10 per cent? Province is 'trying to force us to keep the land transfer tax,' mayor claims

Mayor Rob Ford has vowed to make the province's funding cutbacks an issue at the July 16 meeting of Toronto City Council, and insisted he won't drop pushing for a 10 per cent cut to the city's land transfer tax.

Ford has been blasting the province since last week over its decision to phase out a funding program that was used to improve Toronto's public housing — putting a $50 million hole in next year's city budget.

To cushion the blow, the province said the city doesn't have to repay a $200 million loan from the province. And the province notes the mayor could cancel his proposed reduction to the land transfer tax.

The city responded that it had never expected to repay the now-forgiven loan. And Ford flatly rejected the idea of keeping the land tax at its current rate, which brings in $345 million a year. He wants to reduce the take by $34.5 million by lowering the rate.

Ford has instructed city manager Joe Pennachetti to prepare a "special report" on the issue for next month's meeting.

"They're trying to force us to keep the land transfer tax (as is)," Ford told reporters at a news conference in his office Thursday.

Just days ago, Ford promised in an address to the Toronto Real Estate Board that he plans to follow through on his 2010 election campaign commitment relating to the tax.

"I committed to doing (cutting) 10 per cent," the mayor said. "Actually, I committed to getting rid of the whole thing — obviously that's not going to happen." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Budget chair

Coun. Frank Di Giorgio, recently appointed budget chair by Ford, wasn't so sure 10 per cent is achievable.

- "I would say if the funds are available, I will support it (cutting the tax)," Di Giorgio told reporters at the news conference. "I might have some pool of funds somewhere that are hiding somewhere, I don't know."
- Pennachetti said the opening shortfall in the 2014 operating budget had been about $200 million and has grown to $250 million because of the provincial cutback.

Autopsy confirms toddler died of exposure to high temperatures

A two-year-old toddler found inside a sweltering car Wednesday died as a result of exposure to high temperatures over an extended period of time, an autopsy has revealed.

Police now say the boy was in the care of his maternal grandmother, in her 50s, at the time. The boy's mother was at an appointment and his father was at work. No charges have been laid, as of press time. Police confirmed the boy was left unattended in a small sedan for an "extended period of time" on a day that saw temperatures reach 31C.

Propane plant explosion

Sunrise convicted of labour, environmental violations

An Ontario company was convicted Thursday of violating environmental and labour regulations in connection with the 2008 explosion of a propane plant in Toronto that killed a man and forced thousands from their homes.

Sunrise Propane and its directors, Shay Ben-Moshe and Valery Belahov, were found guilty of nine provincial-offences charges in relation to the blast. The court ruled Sunrise failed to provide safety training and a safe working environment, discharged a contaminant and contravened a number of provincial orders related to the cleanup.

TTC chair scolds cops after getting $110 cycling fine

Coun. Karen Stintz, chair of the TTC and a potential mayoral candidate, was given a $110 ticket Thursday for allegedly failing to heed a stop sign while riding her bicycle near Yonge and Eglinton.

"I received a Toronto Police ticket today for an alleged rolling stop, on a side street while on my bike. Fighting it," Stintz wrote on Twitter, where she posted a photo of the 9:42 a.m. ticket.

She added: "Sorry it couldn't be a juicier 'running afoul of the law' story, everyone. Alleged story, of course."

Stintz was warned last May for a similar alleged offence. She also disclosed that incident on Twitter, writing, "Just got pulled over by Toronto's finest for rolling through a stop-sign on my bike. Pls cycle safely ;)."

She offered some mild criticism of the police after receiving the ticket at Duplex and Berwick Thursday.

"I love Toronto Police," she wrote, "but suggest less of an enforcement clampdown on cyclists and more of one on King transit lanes."

Karen Stintz is fighting a ticket for allegedly failing to heed a stop sign. RENE JOHNSTON/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

She added an hour later: "I agree with varied Toronto Police enforcement/safety blitzes."

The tweets were largely greeted with amusement.

"Probably a calculated move by Karen Stintz, trying to make her edgier for the downtown crowd for 2014," wrote one Twitter user, Andrew Tumulty.

TIME TO RETHINK TRANSIT PRIORITY ON TTC'S BUSIEST ROUTE – KING ST.

ANDY BYFORD
CEO
TORONTO TRANSIT COMMISSION

The TTC recently published details around its next-generation, wheelchair accessible fleet of streetcars and how they will be deployed, starting with the Spadina and Bathurst routes next year.

These new streetcars will have much greater capacity than existing streetcars. And all-door boarding will enable faster servicing of stops.

But there is little benefit of introducing state-of-the-art (also air-conditioned!) vehicles to only then see them snarled in heavy traffic.

To that end, we have proposed a study to identify ways to make our busiest streetcar routes move more smoothly through the downtown area during rush hour.

My view is that nobody is satisfied with the status quo on city streets. Transit riders become frustrated when streetcars bunch up or are held up by other vehicles making left turns or parking illegally. In turn, car drivers get frustrated by having to wait while packed streetcars take excess time to service stops.

On King Street (the TTC's busiest of all surface routes with 56,700 riders a day), the situation will reach an even higher boiling point when new residential developments to the east and west come on stream.

What is being proposed, then, is for the TTC to work with the City to look at a range of options including: improved enforcement of already-dedicated streetcar lanes; consideration of increased left-turn restrictions; and the potential for a transit-only zone on central King Street for a two-hour period during the morning rush. The study would fully evaluate the impact on traffic and businesses. Clearly cars and trucks have to go somewhere – where they go and the impact on businesses is what a serious study would consider.

No, the proposal is not universally popular. But it is my job to advocate for transit riders and to deliver continuous improvement of our service. To me, it makes absolute sense to look at how our busiest routes can run more smoothly to properly move the TTC's 1.7 million daily riders.

PRIDE PARADE – SUNDAY, JUNE 30

Revolution 2.0 for Egypt?

Egyptians watch President Mohammed Morsi's televised speech at a bar in Cairo, Wednesday. All eyes are on Egypt as the country is set once again for massive protests, expected on Sunday. MANU BRABO/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A nation in a state of agitation. Unrest in Egypt could reach a tipping point Sunday, the 1-year anniversary of Brotherhood rule

deena.douara@metronews.ca

Two days after I arrive in Cairo to see family earlier this month, my uncle whisks me away to a protest at the Ministry of Culture.

That's Egypt today: Protests have become a family affair. With this weekend marking the one-year anniversary of the Muslim Brotherhood taking power, you worry about the safety of loved ones.

This particular protest on June 11 turns out to be a chi-chi demonstration in a wealthy Cairo neighbourhood. President Mohammed Morsi has replaced the culture minister and others with Muslim Brotherhood members. Many criticize the changes as crude and corrupt, though others suggest he must excise old officials to begin anew.

I lived in Egypt for five years until 2009, and visited again months after the 2011 revolution. It was a time of uncertainty and insecurity but also of some optimism and rebuilding. That has all but vanished.

The one-year anniversary is Sunday. Protests have already begun and bloodshed is expected. People are asking if we'll become like Syria? Could Salafis win an election? What of the plummeting economy and security?

On a stage outside the ministry, a Tahrir Square protest singer performs a call-and-response song. Artists and intellectuals dot the crowd.

Individuals stand between cars with petitions calling for early elections, and people honk in support.

The next day, I eye a young man in the women's-only metro car with suspicion. After other vendors pass, he rallies the women to demonstrate on the 30th. There will be busing to three sites, and if you can't go then protest in front of your home, he insists. "Don't be afraid," he yells, repeatedly. A woman tells the rest to say "Amen."

Another woman confronts him, telling him that we all know where his support really comes from. Other passengers are pragmatic. "We have to give (Morsi) time, we need stability."

Days later, on the metro again, a woman calls for signatures. "Everyone's signed by now," a passenger tells her. Arguments erupt across the evening car.

I was with a friend when a stylish young woman said she wouldn't sign — she and her husband work in tourism and just as things are getting to normal, protests threaten their livelihoods.

I walk with a friend the next day around Old Cairo. An older man mutters to nobody that Morsi will be good for the country so there will be fewer people like us around. Tourists? Women? Women without a headscarf? Only the disdain is understood.

When I take a cab home with a woman already inside, it's clear they've been discussing politics. The driver asks if I've signed the petition. I hesitate and they wonder aloud if perhaps my father is Brotherhood. He is not. Later when I jot in my notepad, he half-jokingly suspects I'm recording their information.

The woman doesn't know whether to blame Morsi or the revolution for unemployment that's driven young neighbours to drug addiction. The driver, too, had lost his job as a government staffer. When she says the old regime was better, the driver disagrees; he says the 30th had better not mean bringing back the old.

In my last days I visit conservative relatives and wonder whether they support the Brotherhood. I learn they don't — my cousin thinks Morsi is incompetent, idiotic and deceitful (the most common criticism against the Brotherhood). But he thinks things could get much worse. The opposition have no plan, no candidate. Blood will be shed, and for what? He fears that old regime sympathizers or paid thugs will be among protesters, even posing as Brotherhood, to incite violence.

I leave Egypt confused. And worried. I have family members on the front lines. Relatives have lost everything in the plunging economy and once-proud Egyptians are witnessing the decline of their country as it's torn along religious and sectarian lines.

And I wait to see what will become of Egypt's second — perhaps — revolution in my lifetime.

Quoted

"Before, people protested on Fridays. Now it's Sunday, Tuesday, Saturday, Monday; doctors, teachers, judges, those protesting the lack of gas, water, employment, those cut off from their land and whose salaries have been cut. Every day there's something."

Samia Aly, Deena Douara's aunt, who plans to protest for as long as it takes to get rid of Morsi.

A man admitted in court Thursday to shooting and killing Anthony Smith, who gained notoriety in death after a photo emerged that appeared to show him with Toronto's mayor. But his lawyer suggested there may be "further developments."

Nisar Hashimi, 23, entered an early guilty plea to manslaughter and aggravated assault just three months after Smith, 21, was shot dead outside a downtown Toronto nightclub and Muhammad Khattak, 19, was wounded.

Hashimi had been charged with first-degree murder. Smith's sister and mother said outside court that though the plea to lesser charges wasn't the outcome they had expected, they can now move on.

Smith's sister, Kamelia Taylor, lashed out at a throng of reporters, saying it was "disgusting" that no one cared about her brother's death until a picture emerged appearing to show him with the mayor.

Mandela's condition improves

Nelson Mandela's health improved overnight Wednesday, and although his condition remains critical, it is now stable, the South African government said Thursday.

One of the former president's daughters said he is still opening his eyes and reacting to the touch of his family even though his situation is precarious.

The report that the health of the 94-year-old anti-apartheid leader had taken a turn for the better came amid a growing sense in South Africa that Mandela was approaching the end of his life.

Well-wishers have delivered flowers and messages of support to the Pretoria hospital where he is being treated, and prayer sessions were held around the country on Thursday.

Calgary mayor blasts CP Rail over bridge failure

'Looking for a lot of answers'. Mayor Naheed Nenshi and CP CEO Hunter Harrison agree to work more on safety together in the future

Workers inspect a rail car dangling from a failing rail bridge over the Bow River in Calgary Thursday morning. ROBSON FLETCHER/METRO IN CALGARY

Calgary's mayor says Canadian Pacific Railway has apologized for the chaos caused by a train that derailed after a bridge over the swollen Bow River failed.

Naheed Nenshi says he's had a conversation with CP CEO Hunter Harrison and they both agreed to work together more on safety.

Nenshi lashed out at CP earlier Thursday, suggesting the company did a poor job inspecting its bridge after a recent flooding.

"How is it we don't have regulatory authority over this, but it's my guys down there risking their lives to fix it?" Nenshi asked earlier Thursday.

"Certainly once this crisis is over, I'll be looking for a lot of answers from a lot of people. When was that bridge inspected? Why was it not inspected after Saturday? Remember, on Saturday the Bow River was still running higher than anyone had ever seen in their lifetimes," Nenshi said.

"I'll be very blunt. I'll probably get in trouble for saying this," Nenshi added. "We've seen a lot of people lose their jobs at CP over the last year. How many bridge inspectors did they fire?"

Harrison said several inspections were done on the bridge, adding that the structure was checked five times after floodwaters rose, but piers at the bottom of the river failed.

He said the bridge's failure is as "extraordinary" as the heavy rains and flooding in southern Alberta.

Ottawa. Peter MacKay says he wants to stay on as defence minister

Defence Minister Peter MacKay SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Defence Minister Peter MacKay says rumours of his political demise are greatly exaggerated.

With a cabinet shuffle expected in the coming weeks, Ottawa has been alive with speculation that MacKay is about to be shuffled out of cabinet or is planning a jump to a lucrative private-sector job.

Not so, the minister said Thursday.

"I've been hearing that almost since the day I entered public life — that I was leaving. My focus is very much on my family but also on my broader responsibilities as an MP and a minister," MacKay said.

MacKay said he knows he serves in cabinet at the pleasure of Prime Minister Stephen Harper, and added he has had no discussions about a portfolio shift.

MacKay said the recent birth of his first child, a son, has changed his view of the world, but not his commitment to public service.

MacKay added that not only does he want to stay in politics, he'd like to stay on as defence minister, a role he described as the best job he's ever had.

"I love it, interacting with the best Canadians I've ever met — the Canadian Forces," he said. "It's the thrill of a lifetime. The single greatest honour I've had in public life is working with the Canadian Forces." THE CANADIAN PRESS

CRTC gives green light to Astral deal

Second time around. Bell's revised takeover bid approved after firm promises to sell some specialty TV channels and radio stations

A construction worker works on a Bell building in Ottawa on Wednesday. The CRTC has approved Bell's revised bid for Astral Media. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's communications regulator cleared the way for the country's newest telecom colossus Thursday, approving Bell's retooled $3.4-billion bid for Astral Media and its coveted TV specialty channels and radio stations.

Bell's original bid for Astral was rejected by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission last fall on the grounds that it wasn't in the best interests of Canadians.

But the regulator said the revised bid, in which Bell agreed to sell some of Astral's specialty TV channels and radio stations, satisfied its concerns that the company would be too dominant in the market.

"I would like to emphasize that the CRTC's approval of this transaction, with the measures we have imposed, is in the public interest," said CRTC chairman Jean-Pierre Blais.

"It serves the objectives set out by Parliament in the Broadcasting Act for the Canadian broadcasting system."

Bell had no immediate comment on the decision.

"We're assessing the details of the CRTC's decision, and will issue a detailed statement before markets open tomorrow," spokeswoman Jacqueline Michelis said in an email.

Coveted content

- Bell's parent company, BCE Inc., has said it wants to buy Astral to put its content across traditional TV, computers, smartphones and tablets.
- Astral's English pay TV service, The Movie Network, and French-language pay TV service Super Ecran would be key providers of shows and movies.

Eiffel Tower reopens following 2-day strike

France's Eiffel Tower has reopened after a rare two-day workers' strike. The union representing most of the Eiffel Tower's 300 workers called the walkout Tuesday during negotiations this week over salary raises, the company profit-sharing policy and other issues. The 124-year-old tower gets about 25,000 tourists daily — like the couple seen in this photo on a rainy day this past May. Though it is scheduled to be open every day, it occasionally closes because of suicide threats, bomb threats — or strikes. FRED DUFOUR/AFP/GETTY IMAGES

AND THEN THERE WAS ONE.

Soon Ontario will be the last province in Canada where dental assistants are not a regulated health profession. This means that dentists can hire people without formal education to do the work of dental assistants. Dental assistants take radiographs, are responsible for infection control and may perform other intra-oral duties.

The Ontario Dental Assistants Association (ODAA), the certifying body for Ontario dental assistants feels this is a matter of public safety. Dental patients have the right to know that everyone working in a dental office is educated and formally trained.

We believe that Ontario dental assistants will be regulated one day. Until then, we would encourage you to ask your dentist if they hire only ODAA certified dental assistants to work in the office. At least, that's one good reason to smile.

A message from the Ontario Dental Assistants Association, the certifying body for Ontario Dental Assistants for over 40 years.

LIES YOUR MOTHER TOLD YOU

THE METRO LIST

Mike Benhaim
metronews.ca

1 Oh Canada (Say whaa?). CBC Music wanted to spice up our country's national anthem for Canada Day, so they recruited domestic beat boxer KRNFX, national vocal treasure Maiko Watson, and seasoned producer Ian Blackwood. The result is a righteous hip-hop groove for young Liberals and New Democrats alike. Check them out on YouTube, yo! One time (one time).

2 Smart screen. Research from the University of London ends a tradition of lies parents perpetuated about the harmful effects of TV. The study revealed that kids who watched more did better in school than their more moderate-viewing counterparts. Subsequent studies also showed that your dog likely did not retire to a ranch, your face will not stay like that, and no matter how many times you do it, you will not go blind!

3 Oh, Paula. What kind of world do we live in when we can't throw a simple plantation-style wedding complete with black servants, or abuse ethnic employees without being labelled "racist"? It's like getting arrested for fraud, and pleading "not guilty," saying, "Hey, I'm just a drug dealer."

4 Boyfriend. Media reports show that Biebs is taking his bad-ass image to the next level by publicly making out with a married woman. At 22 years old, Jordan Ozuna has been separated almost as long as she was married, but she is still married, according to her estranged mother-in-law. Yet, she fools around with Biebs.

5 Growing up Kardashian. Despite endowing their child with the moniker of North West, sources close to the couple say that Kim and Kanye are wonderful parents. Kim says she enjoys being a mother. Sure, it's tough, waking up in the middle of the day, supervising the nanny, looking out for possible allergies to fruits or nuts, or unnatural fabrics, but as long as she can hold her baby, for just a few minutes before each mani-pedi, it's all worth it.

6 C'est la Vie. This week in 1974, French crooner Charles Aznavour hit No. 1 in the U.K. with She. At 50, he was the oldest living male to top the charts in Britain. Even though his own peeps didn't go for it, the song became a classic and was covered 25 years later by Elvis Costello for the movie Notting Hill.

7 The Iron Sheik. Old-school wrestling fans will remember Hulk Hogan's notorious nemesis. Hossein Khosrow Vaziri, former Olympic wrestler and bodyguard for the Shah of Iran, has an incredible story. Persian-Canadian brothers Jian and Page, a.k.a. The Magen Boys, have been gathering footage for years and a powerful film has emerged. To learn about the upcoming documentary and this fascinating man, visit indiegogo.com for the Iron Sheik Story.

8 Busting balls. This week, the now-former New England Patriots tight end Aaron Hernandez was charged with first-degree murder, and Cleveland Browns rookie Ausar Walcott was charged with attempted murder, making a grand total of 36 NFL players to be arrested this year. League officials are up in arms about the allegations, but I think the problem is obvious. Cops just prefer basketball.

These are literally pot-bellied pigs

TED S. WARREN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS/PHOTOS

Weed-fed pigs living the high life

Pigs on a farm owned by Jeremy Gross eat feed comprised of a mixture of wheat mash left over from the production of vodka, nutritional pellets, and other byproducts of medical marijuana.
METRO

The farmers get the marijuana excess — roots, stems, and other parts of the plant — from a medical marijuana dispensary.

Put that in your pig, but don't smoke it

Part flavour experiment, part green recycling, part promotion and bolstered by the legalization of recreational marijuana in Washington state, pot excess has been fed to the hogs by their owners since earlier this year. METRO

Something to snort about

"Of all the crazy things I've seen in my 37-plus years, this is the dumbest thing I've ever seen in my life."

John P. McNamara, Washington State University's department of animal sciences professor
He said he wasn't amused by the novelty of feeding pigs the byproduct.

Bandcamp is a website that boasts a limitless selection of music you can buy directly from the artist, with the added bonus of allowing you to preview songs in full before you buy. Here are a few Canadian artists worth a listen.

Jim Guthrie

Takes Time: Jim Guthrie's output has been so consistently excellent, it's starting to border on obnoxious, and this is no different. Think clever folk music with hushed vocal and lush production. (jimguthrie.bandcamp.com)

Isosine

Mashup Manifesto II: Tossed-off collisions like Nine Inch Nails and Carly Rae Jepsen are giving mashups a dirty name. But Isosine's experiments are lovingly nurtured enough to pull off using a Nicki Minaj beat to turn The Proclaimers' 500 Miles into a sweet Top 40 ballad. (isosine.bandcamp.com)

F-777

I'm So Classy: Short and sweet glitchy electro breaks that sounds like a frantic mix of French house and classic TV theme songs. Fun stuff. (jessevalentinemusic.bandcamp.com)

Twitter

@metropicks asked: The 'best pork chop you've ever had' comes from pigs fed marijuana, says one farmer. Dumb or yum?

@Canucklehead_ca: So wait – we're now eating pot-fed pot roast?!!! This madness must end!

@Gilbert80Jeremy: this will make things interesting next time I put pork chops in the smoker! #pigsfly-high

@ccordova84: Those pigs would be juicy. All that pot would give those pigs the munchies and make them plump.

@DrMoiraStilwell: Something is not Kosher here!

Synopsis

Channing Tatum plays John Cale, a divorced father of one who desperately wants to impress his daughter Emily (Joey King) by getting a job as security for the president of the United States (Jamie Foxx). On the day of his Secret Service job interview some very bad men (there will be no spoilers here!) invade the White House, disabling the security forces and gaining control of the president's home. Separated from his daughter, John gets some on-the-job training as he becomes POTUS' defacto guard while shooting, stabbing and fisticuffing his way to his daughter's rescue.

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Been there, bombed that

White House Down. The Jamie Foxx flick isn't your typical blow 'em up blockbuster but it doesn't do much to set itself apart either

Richard: Mark, unlike the virtually identical Olympus Has Fallen, the Gerard Butler White House disaster flick that opened earlier this year, White House Down spends half-an-hour of its sprawling 137 minutes introducing the characters, which is 29 minutes more than we got in Butler's film. There's loads and loads of not terribly interesting talking, then the dome blows off the White House and director Roland Emmerich's genius for making things go boom comes into play. From that point on, it's fun stuff.

Mark: And the question becomes which is the better flick? White House Down has bigger stars, more expensive production and more action than Olympus Has Fallen. But if we use plausibility as a guideline, I think Olympus has a bit of an edge. That film almost felt like an indie, and its relative cheapness worked for it. I'm not saying that White House Down isn't fun, but there were lots of times I just didn't believe it, starting with the idea that Jamie Foxx could be elected president. On the other hand, James Woods is very believable. Too believable, maybe.

RC: Woods does disgruntled very well. I won't say any more about Woods — there will be no spoilers here — but I can say that this is a talkier-than-usual action movie. But by and large the chit chat is entertaining. Best line in the movie? "That's President Sawyer, and he has a rocket launcher!" I loved that the cheese factor was ramped up to 11 for the last hour-and-a-half.

MB: Yes, I enjoyed that too. And there's a bit of comedy thrown in. Nicolas Wright is terrific as a White House guide with SNL timing. But the director, Roland Emmerich, may have some explaining to do. This is the second time he's blown up the White House (Independence Day being the first), and I'm no Freudian, but as a foreign national he may be receiving a visit from some Homeland Security in the near future.

RC: He's the master of disaster! He's never met a monument he didn't want to destroy. Whether it be bad weather à la The Day After Tomorrow or a worldwide cataclysm as in his global warming epic 2012, the director can't seem to stop himself from trashing beloved landmarks.

MB: I just heard there's a Canadian version of this film being produced where terrorists take over 24 Sussex Dr. and get into a bitter debate with the government over who pays the utility bills.

Drama

Unfinished Song

Director. Paul Andrew Williams

Stars. Terence Stamp, Vanessa Redgrave

Terence Stamp is a dour, impatient man facing the imminent death of his wife (Redgrave) when he realizes he didn't bring her much happiness. He's overwhelmed by guilt and he turns his self-hatred on his son. He tries to stave off loneliness by joining the seniors' singing group she had belonged to. Singing helps him release emotion he can't express otherwise and he starts to come to life again. This is the sweetly sentimental film the English do so well.

The Secret Disco Revolution

Director. Jamie Kastner

Stars. Vince Aletti, Eric Anzalone, Robert Kool Bell

Documentarian Jamie Kastner attempts to place the "boogie oogie oogie" of disco music in a political context, trotting out academics who describe a Donna Summer hit as "the feminist critique of three minute sex," and noting how the music provided liberation for gays, African Americans and women. It's an interesting thesis, but one that is presented, rather than proven. It is however, fun to see the grainy archival footage and hear the legends of the music chime in on the heady days when shaking your booty could still be considered subversive.

Drama

My Brother the Devil

Director. Sally El Hosaini

Stars. James Floyd, Fady Elsayed

Mo idolizes his older brother Rashid — he's cool, charismatic and, in their rough London neighbourhood, he's untouchable. Though Mo (Elsayed) wants to be just like him, Rashid (Floyd) is adamant that his brother stay off the streets and in school. But when they witness a murder, the brothers are both led down very different paths that threaten their once unbreakable bond. Floyd and newcomer Elsayed both deliver exceptional performances in writer-director Sally El Hosaini's surprising and emotional debut feature.

REGAN REID

Comedy/Crime

The Heat

Director. Paul Feig

Sarah Ashburn (Oscar winner Sandra Bullock) is an uptight FBI agent teamed with tough-talking Boston street cop Shannon Mullins (Melissa McCarthy) to bring down a murderous drug dealer. This odd couple, buddy cop dynamic is as old as the movies, so you'd hope for the performances to breath new life into the film's withered lungs. Instead we get the same old from two good performers. With a gag to giggle ratio of about five-to-one, more jokes miss than hit. McCarthy tries hard to raise a smile but she doesn't do anything here we haven't seen her do before and better. RICHARD CROUSE

Documentary

Storm Surfers 3D

Directors. Justin McMillan, Chris Nelius

Stars. Tom Carroll, Ross Clarke-Jones

Think of Storm Surfers as the unofficial sequel to Stacy Peralta's history of big wave surfing, Riding Giants. The film follows friends and pro big wave surfers Ross Clarke-Jones and Tom Carroll as they scour the waters surrounding their native Australia for uncharted surf spots. Firmly in middle age, both surfers address their aging bodies and shifting priorities; Carroll in particular finds brushes with dead affecting his overall outlook on the sport. But while the relationship between the two forms the core of the film, the 3D surf scenes are the real attraction, making Storm Surfers a rare case where the medium enhances rather than distracts from the film.

Mid-life decisions

I have considered lots of times that after age 50, I will be retired as an actor; I have the idea that it is the moment to make more projects as a director or producer. And I have a rather large family—my children are becoming teenagers but yeah, I also want to tell other types of stories on the screen."

He's not a savage and you're not in India

Johnny Depp, left, as Tonto in the Lone Ranger. HANDOUT

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

The Lone Ranger may be the biggest western to come out of Hollywood in years, but it's not star Johnny Depp's first venture into the frontier.

In 1995, Depp starred as an out-of-his-depths city slicker in Jim Jarmusch's Dead Man — not that he's seen it. "I feel somehow that Jim Jarmusch made a great and amazing sort of epic poem of a western with Dead Man," Depp says. "Haven't seen the film, but I love Jim, and I know what he's capable of, and from what I've heard, it's — and I did read the script by the way, and it was — it was wonderful."

Now, about that Lone Ranger. In taking on the iconic character of Tonto in such an iconic property, Depp — who spearheaded and executive-produced the project — saw the Lone Ranger as a chance to reverse a lot of Hollywood's past mistakes. "In the history of cinema, the Native American has been portrayed as a savage or as something lesser than. And it was important to me to at least take a good shot at erasing that," he says.

On a more personal level, there's also the way Tonto himself — the Lone Ranger's stoic sidekick — had been portrayed. "As a very young child, I was always perturbed by the idea of Tonto being a sidekick. That just didn't register properly in my head," Depp explains. "I just thought it was potentially an opportunity to right the wrong, you know?"

And it's not just Hollywood's treatment of Native Americans that needs addressing, Depp insists. There are centuries of injustice and stereotypes he hopes his flashy summer blockbuster can help diminish. "I wanted to convey that the Native Americans were only deemed savages when Christopher Columbus hit the wrong f—ing place, and decided that he'd hit India," Depp says. "That's our history. He thought he hit India, and called the people Indians. That's our history, you know? I mean, that's pretty f—ing weird, seriously."

Kooky characters

Tonto versus Captain Jack

Tonto is another addition to Johnny Depp's coterie of kooky characters, including the Mad Hatter, Hunter S. Thompson and Edward Scissorhands. But perhaps the Grand Poobah of Depp's alter egos is Pirates of the Caribbean mainstay Captain Jack Sparrow. So between the rakish pirate and the wily Comanche warrior, who would win in a fight?

"It's over for Tonto," Depp says with a weary shake of his head. "Yeah, it's over for Tonto. Captain Jack is far too dark. It wouldn't take long and it would be unpleasant."

Visitors to the official Summerlicious website at toronto.ca/summerlicious can locate and sort restaurants by price, neighbourhood and cuisine, and share their list through social media. An interactive map, which can be found on the website, lets visitors find Summerlicious restaurants across the city.

ESKA Natural Spring Water returns as the official water sponsor of the event, featuring both still and sparkling water at select restaurants.

Toronto food lovers continue to embrace the Summerlicious and Winterlicious programs produced by the City of Toronto.

Family, friends and fans bid final ciao to Sopranos star

PAT HEALY
Metro World News

Jamie Lynn-Sigler, who played Tony's daughter Meadow on The Sopranos, sobbed in front of the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine in New York City on Thursday morning at the funeral of James Gandolfini.

The New York Times reports that almost the entire cast of The Sopranos was there, including Edie Falco, Joe Pantoliano, Dominic Chianese, Steve Schirripa, Aida Turturro, Vincent Curatola and Michael Imperioli.

New Jersey Governor Chris Christie, Hilaria and Alec Baldwin, John Turturro, and David Chase were also on hand to say goodbye to the famed actor.

In a somewhat unheard of move, the public was also allowed to attend. The Times reports that two lines formed before the service: One for those who knew Gandolfini personally and one for those who didn't.

One of those waiting in that line was fan Gwen Gibbs, who drove from Kentucky to give her respects.

"I am not sure how to put it in words," she says. "He made the character of Tony Soprano feel like a real person, like someone you knew. When I heard he had died I hoped it was a hoax."

ONTARIO RIBFESTS ARE SMOKIN'

If you love ribs, mark your calendar because they're really cooking now!

There's a Ribfest food festival scheduled for practically every weekend from now until Labour Day in towns and cities throughout the province.

What's on the menu? Racks of pork babyback ribs of course — and so much more.

"I love going for the people, the music and the beer... it's such a great way to spend a day," says Wilfred Reinke, who blogs about his favourite Ribfests at Oshawalaser.com/Blog.

The carnival-like atmosphere features the sounds and aroma of food cooking on the grill; ribs as well as pulled pork sandwiches (a very popular item on menus this year, says Reinke), chicken and baked beans.

You can watch 'ribbers' compete in taste competitions, listen to live music, and enjoy activities for kids such as rides, games and face painting. Many Ribfests are organized by Rotary Clubs and there are fundraising events too.

How to get the most out of your day? The best advice comes from Tomas Cleary of Canada's Largest Ribfest in Burlington (which serves over 150,000 pounds of ribs every year): "Make sure you come hungry because there are so many delicious ribs, you'll want to try them all."

SECRET'S IN THE SAUCE

Ribs are dry rubbed, smoked or baked, and then drenched in sauce and finished on the grill. "My own special sauce is 50 per cent steak sauce and 50 per cent grape jelly," says Reinke. "The sugar in the grape jelly caramelizes and adds a beautiful colour and taste to the ribs."

LIQUID ASSETS

Hey, Canada, this is your long weekend. The one where you celebrate our great country with family, friends and grilled goodness.

Since this coming Monday is all about national pride, you all need to step up and fill your glass with some home-grown liquid.

It could be beer (there's a sea of amazing craft brews out there), it could be a spirit (think one of our classic Canadian whiskies) or, of course, a local wine.

Selection of our wines varies across the country. While there are some big national brands, the industry is really led by artisan winemakers producing smaller quantities of pretty fantastic juice that doesn't flow far from home.

Ontario's Henry of Pelham Winery has been an advocate for quality Canuck vino since the mid-'80s. Its 2011 Sibling Rivalry White ($12.95 to $16.99) is an irreverent New World wonder made from a blend of riesling, chardonnay and gewürztraminer.

The trio conspires to create an aromatic mix of fruit cocktail, citrus and subtle spice that rolls across the palate and makes for both an open-minded food partner and refreshing cocktail wine.

Whatever you may be drinking on July 1, make it Canadian! PRICES REFLECT RANGE ACROSS COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Canada, keep your meat tangy this long weekend

Chicken drumettes are the thick meaty part of the wing; they almost look like a mini leg. Here, they star in a delicious Herb and Spice Marinated Barbecue Chicken Drumettes dish.

Chef Richard Julien added 10 per cent cream to the marinade to add moisture, which helps keep chicken from drying out on the grill. Serve with an extra thick tangy sour cream dip.

This recipe serves four. THE CANADIAN PRESS H/O

Ingredients

- 16 chicken drumettes (about 750 g/1 1/2 lb)
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) 10 per cent half-and-half cream
- 1/2 small onion, peeled
- 3 cloves garlic, peeled
- 7.5-cm (3-inch) piece of ginger, peeled and minced
- Zest and juice of 1 lemon (about 45 ml/3 tbsp of juice)
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) fresh cilantro leaves
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) butter, melted
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) each Dijon mustard, liquid honey and apple cider vinegar
- 10 ml (2 tsp) each ground cumin and coriander
- 5 ml (1 tsp) each ground turmeric and cayenne
- Salt and pepper, to taste

1. Pull skin off chicken drumettes; place in 20-cm (8-inch) square glass baking dish or similar size stainless-steel pan.

2. In food processor, combine, cream, onion, garlic, ginger, lemon zest and juice, cilantro, butter, mustard, honey, vinegar, cumin, coriander, turmeric, cayenne, salt and pepper; process until smooth. Pour marinade over chicken; cover and refrigerate for 2 hours to allow flavours to develop.

3. Heat grill to medium-high. Remove chicken from marinade and place on baking sheet lined with paper towels. Place chicken pieces on greased grill; reduce temperature to medium-low. Grill with lid down for 9 minutes, turn chicken over, close lid and grill for 8 minutes or until juices run clear from chicken when tested with a fork. CHEF RICHARD JULIEN OF CHEF LIVE! If you haven't noticed, the city's been painted with the colours of the rainbow for Pride Weekend. On through Sunday, Pride Weekend celebrates all things LGBT. Parties, events, talks, street fairs and more will be going down around the Church-Wellesley Village area, and various venues and neighbourhoods throughout the city are gearing up for the big Pride Parade down Yonge Street on Sunday.

Canada Day Fireworks

July 1 is Monday, which means it's time to gear up for Canada Day festivities! One of the top celebrations is via Canada Day fireworks, and there are a few great spots to catch 'em: Ashbridges Bay Park (1675 Lake Shore Blvd. E), Canada's Wonderland (9580 Jane St. in Vaughan), and Mel Lastman Square (North York).

Just Opened: Clubhouse Sandwich Shop

At 455 Spadina Ave. you'll now find a ditty of a lil' shop called Clubhouse. What are they serving up? Why, epic sandwiches, of course! Using fresh ingredients and tasty combinations — like the vegetarian friendly basil-marinated fried tomato or the seafood lovers' oyster po'boy — Clubhouse Sandwich Shop is bringing some much needed oomph to the grab-and-go market near College and Spadina.

Just Opened: Rock Lobster on Queen

Fans of the original Rock Lobster Food Co. pop-up and the first Rock Lobster restaurant on Ossington take note: the second location of Matt Pettit's budding empire has opened up shop in the space that previously housed Shanghai Cowgirl (538 Queen St. W). Featuring a new menu, a beautiful back patio, and a seafood retail concept, the new Rock Lobster will totally get you hooked.

Life on the Fringe

Celebrating 25 years, the Toronto Fringe Festival stages will light up from July 3 to 14. Taking place at multiple venues across the city, the fest is an ode to performance theatre, plays, musicals and the like. With more than 140 different shows to watch out for, indulge in some serious culture during this multi-day arts fest.

Toronto Urban Roots Festival

From Thursday July 4 to Sunday July 7 at Garrison Common at Fort York (100 Garrison Rd.), get ready for bands and musicians like She & Him, Neko Case, Belle and Sebastian, The Arkells, Lowest of the Low and many more. Why? The Toronto Urban Roots Festival is back to bring a four-day showcase of amazing live music to a scenic historic site right in downtown Toronto. Now that's notable, right?

Raonic irate after 2nd-round loss

Milos Raonic didn't mince words when describing his latest early exit from Wimbledon.

Raonic was eliminated in the second round on Thursday with a 7-5, 6-4, 7-6 (4) decision to Igor Sijsling.

"At one stage I lost 12 points in a row — pathetic," Raonic said.

Jays dropped by Lester in Boston

Jon Lester pitched into the eighth inning before leaving with an apparent injury, and Dustin Pedroia homered in a seven-run second to help the Boston Red Sox beat the Toronto Blue Jays 7-4 in the opener of a four-game series Thursday night.

Toronto, which reeled off 11 straight wins this month, had won 12 of its past 14 games and 15 of 19 to close within 6 1/2 games of the AL East-leading Red Sox before running into Lester.

NBA draft. Cleveland's GTA love affair continues with pick of swingman 1st overall

Brampton's Anthony Bennett walks on stage after being selected No. 1 overall by the Cleveland Cavaliers at the NBA draft on Thursday night in New York. MIKE STOBE/GETTY IMAGES

Brampton's Anthony Bennett made Canadian basketball history Thursday, becoming the first player from north of the border to be selected first overall in the NBA draft.

The Cleveland Cavaliers stunned the league by selecting the UNLV freshman forward, who has starred for Canada's junior team and was the Mountain West Conference player of the year.

"I'm just as surprised as everybody else," Bennett said. "I didn't really have any idea who's going No. 1 or who was going No. 2. I heard everything was up for grabs. But I'm just real happy, glad that I have this opportunity, and I just got to thank God for everything."

Tristan Thompson of Brampton was selected No. 4 by the Cavaliers in the 2011 draft, making him the highest Canadian draft pick before Thursday. Teen phenom Andrew Wiggins of Thornhill is projected to go first overall in 2014.

"Yeah. It's just crazy. Made history. I can't really complain about that," said Bennett, who had 25 to 30 family members with him in New York. "It's just like a long time dream that I had since I first started playing basketball, even though it was six or seven years ago. It's just crazy. Next year with Wiggins, hopefully he does well at Kansas. I'm rooting for him. I'm pretty sure he'll get that No. 1 spot."

Steve Nash of Victoria, taken 15th overall by Phoenix in 1996 and currently the GM of Canada's men's team, retweeted the NBA's announcement adding: "Proud on Proud!"

Prime Minister Stephen Harper posted on Twitter "Congrats to @AnthonyBennett for being the first Cdn ever drafted #1 overall in the NBA draft. Good luck in Cleveland, we're all behind you."

There was suspense right until the end, either because the Cavs were unsure who they wanted or were trying to trade the pick. Most predictions had them taking either Nerlens Noel or Alex Len.

Bennett has been sidelined since having rotator cuff surgery in May, and didn't participate in the draft combine or pre-draft workouts. The 20-year-old clearly impressed in his interviews — he interviewed for the top five teams in the draft — and his play last season.

Bennett had surgery a few weeks after the Runnin' Rebels lost in the second round of March Madness, but said Wednesday he wasn't concerned the injury would hurt his draft stock. He was bang on.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
By all means, withdraw your support from a friend if they have let you down. It's not as if they weren't warned. You told them what would happen if they did not shape up.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Life is full of surprises and over the next couple of days you will be amazed by some of the things that happen. While others are too shocked to act, find ways to cash in.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Where business and financial matters are concerned, you can and you must look on the bright side today. If you let negative thoughts take hold, almost inevitably it will lead to negative events occurring.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
It might be better to clear the air today than allow a feud of some kind to drag on. Most likely there is no "right" or "wrong" involved, it's just that you see things in different ways. Can't you accept that?

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You don't have to conform to other people's standards just because they expect it of you. The only thing that matters is what you expect of yourself. Do what feels right and, if others don't like it, too bad.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
There are a few creative influences in your chart right now. Today, you need to decide what you're going to focus on. One thing done well is better than many things done poorly.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Make allowances for a friend's behaviour today. It is better to forgive and forget than make an issue of something you can't change. Besides, think of all the times they have forgiven you in the past.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
The more you search for a solution to a problem, the further away it seems to get. Maybe you should take the hint and stop looking so hard. Everything will work out for the best when the time is right.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Watch out you don't spend more than you can afford today. If you do feel the need to splash out on something costly, make sure there is a money-back guarantee — just in case you change your mind.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You could be more emotional than usual over the next 24 hours. Hide your sensitive feelings from critics, who will play on them if they think it might damage your rep.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
You may have every reason to be annoyed but you are also advised to keep your feelings to yourself as much as possible. Don't let your own behaviour become an issue.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Let the world know what your opinions are, even if they are largely at odds with the way most people view things. The masses are easily manipulated but you have never followed the herd. SALLY BROMPTON
